Foreword

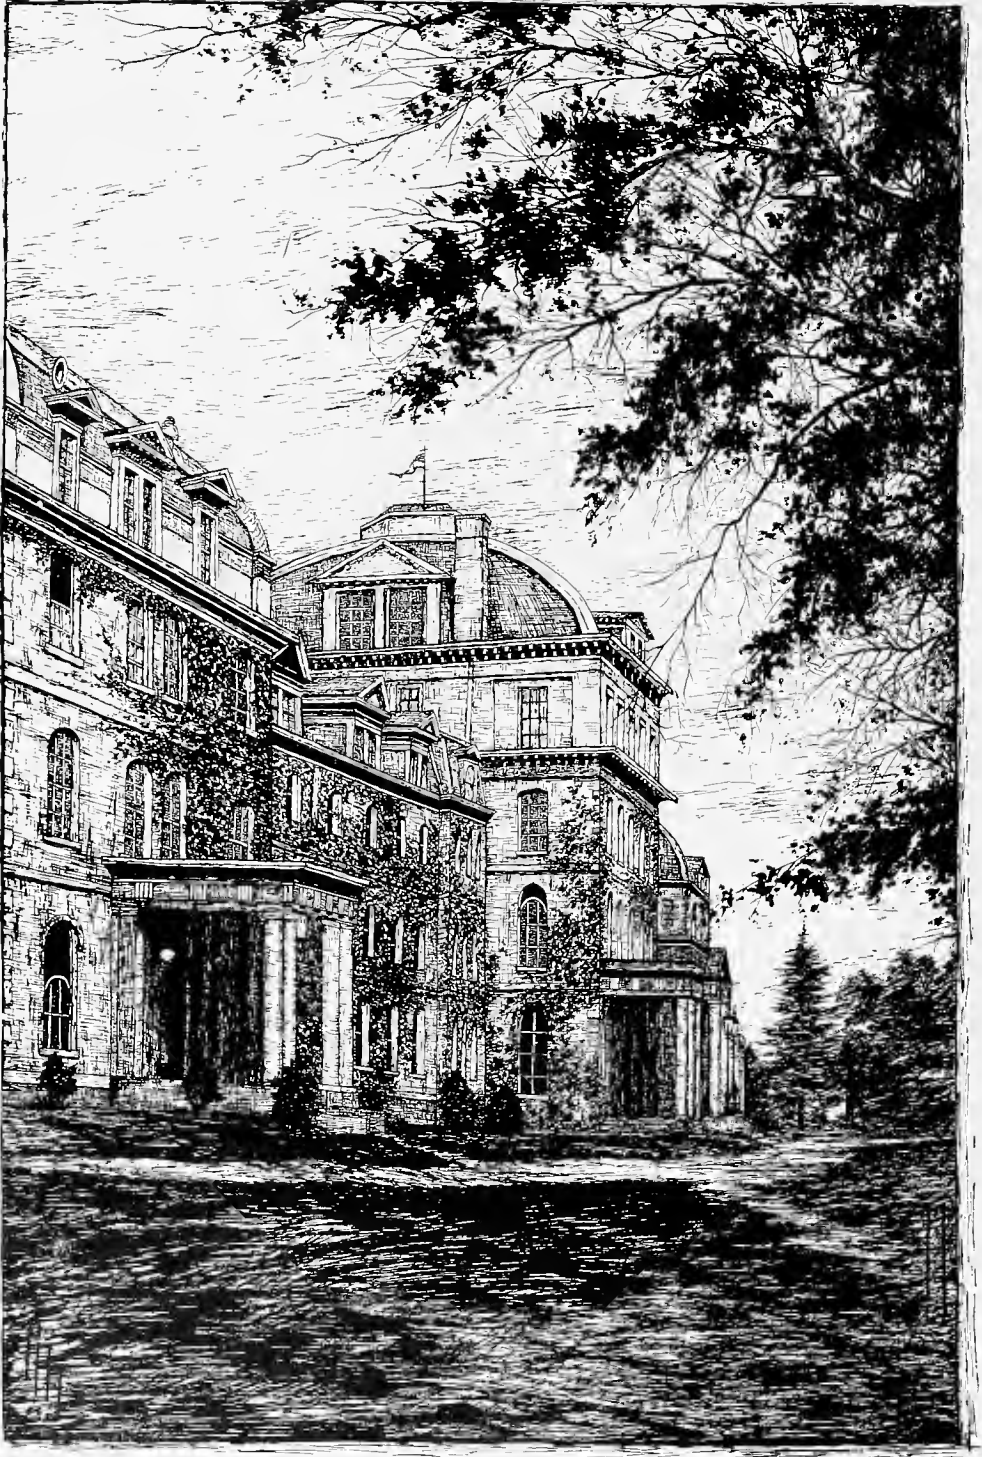

If in offering this HALCYON to Swarthmoreans we, of the Class of Nineteen Twenty, may revive long cherished memories for those who have left their Alma Mater, perpetuate a love for Swarthmore in those whose college years are not yet four, and reflect for those who knew it not the true nature and achievements of the military order which has so soon come and gone, then our earnest desire and purpose will have been accomplished. ❧ ❧

La Vie Militaire

It is with a feeling of real pride that I contemplate the record made by Swarthmore men in the struggle of the ages. The affection in which our loyal alumni held their Alma Mater has been strengthened by the knowledge that Swarthmore has contributed so much to the service of the Republic in its great crisis. We are grateful that our Swarthmore men of the fighting age have been so courageous and so dependable and that the men and women of the older classes, who did not fight, rallied so splendidly to patriotic duty here at home. May we have the further joy of seeing Swarthmore in all its elements stand firmly for American principles at home and abroad in the days of readjustment which are before us.

*To you, who from old Stwarthmore's halls departed,
Who gave your lives that others here might live,
To you, who in the thick of battle started,
With grim determination all to give:*

*To you who are our manhood's choicest flower,
The first enlisted and the first to go,
To you, who in our nation's darkest hour
Brought sweet relief to Europe's pain and woe:*

*To you, who gave all that was worth the giving,
And, having given, for our freedom died,
You in our hearts and memories are living,
Your spirit evermore will be our guide.*

A RAISON D'ETRE

THOUGH to turn aside from the course dictated by the convictions of conscience be to jeopardize the stronghold in which those beliefs have been cherished, yet the unselfishness, the freedom from bias or narrow sectarianism which such action reveals, recommend those who commit themselves to the change as wholly commendable and praiseworthy before the world,—in truth more to be respected than those who, unswerving, resist every departure from the exercise of their time-honored doctrines.

Swarthmore College came to feel that the exigency of the military situation in which the United States was involved called upon her for an emergency measure. It was no longer time for the ordinary pursuit of a peace program. The time was ripe for sacrifice, for departure from principle, even, in order better to serve. Such was her state of mind when approached by the Government with a proposal to establish a unit of the Students Army Training Corps at Swarthmore. And in such a state of mind, supported by a concert of alumni and undergraduate opinion, the College opened her doors to Uncle Sam and set about assisting the military representatives in the establishment of the new order.

Now that the emergency is past, we are competent to look back upon the military regime with an unclouded vision, and estimate the extent of its success. The life of a soldier—on this side of the firing line, at least—is everywhere hailed as a healthy and robust existence, affording excellent opportunity for physical betterment. So it was found at Swarthmore. The prescribed exercise, the regular hours of eating and sleeping, and the disciplinary training of the army, livened many a step, broadened many a pair of shoulders, and made many a sluggard a true, trim soldier.

But apart from the value of the S. A. T. C. to the men in its ranks, the organization made a considerable contribution toward the potential fighting power of the country. None of the members of the Swarthmore unit were sent overseas; only a few were ordered to officers training camps; but many, at the time orders for demobilization came through, had been recommended for such transfer. In a short time, probably by the end of January, the original membership of the Swarthmore unit would have been exhausted by departure of the candidate-officers to training camps of the various branches of the service. In this respect, then, the S. A. T. C. at Swarthmore made an essential contribution to the War Department's officers training program.

The remaining consideration has to do with the material effect of the S. A. T. C. upon the College. Many institutions which supported units of the S. A. T. C. suffered first, from being obliged to lower their standards of scholarship and character, and second, from sudden discontinuance of income upon demobilization. President Swain has drawn our attention to the absence of the former condition at Swarthmore; and these elements being interdependent, the latter detriment was evidently negligible. Finally, as for those persons who decried the establishment of the military unit at Swarthmore, let us refer to our opening words, with this much in addition,—that while the Stars and Stripes, floating over Parrish Hall during that period of three months, designated Swarthmore College as a military post, those colors still may wave emblematic of the service rendered, while beneath that flag there exists a College mind no less loyal to traditional origin, and certainly invigorated and refreshed by this serviceable deviation from patriarchal precedent.

With 1920 in the Service

FRANK EDWARD ATKINS - - - Naval Aviation. See Junior Section

CHARLES BIDDLE ATLEE - - - Aviation Training School, University of Columbia

ROBERT FROST CARR

Sergeant, Ordnance, Overseas

Upon urgent request, Bob allowed it to be said of him that he was in the St. Mihiel drive and the drive through the Argonne Forest, handling ammunition. He tells more freely of a Christmas banquet at which his Jazz band amused a gang of German prisoners. "The piano we got from one of the German barracks. The other pieces were the bottom of a chair, a fifty-gallon soup kettle, a three-foot circular saw, a piece of iron, a big dinner bell, and three combs with tissue paper."

ALFRED JAMES CHALMERS - Engineers, Overseas

"Al" wanted to do his bit in the Aviation, but the promise of a long wait on this side in that branch of the service didn't suit him, so he got in the Engineers instead. He soon found himself in France doing "interesting, valuable and important work with a camouflage outfit," which consisted of hiding Yank artillery from Boche fire.

HALCYON

JOHN FRANCIS CUNNINGHAM - - - Twelfth Field Artillery, U. S. A.

Jack tried hard to get into the service. When he finally hooked up with the Field Artillery, in training at Camp Merritt, he was beset with hard luck. Measles got him just as his Battery was preparing to cross the pond and he was invalided and discharged. He is now at Princeton University.

JAMES RAYMOND DALTON - - - Corporal, Engineers, Overseas

THOMAS LEGGETT EAGAN - - Lieutenant, Infantry. See Junior Section

DAVID BRAMAN FELL - - - Corporal, U. S. Marine Corps

Dave was one of the men who joined the Marines to get "action." Instead, he got inaction, much to his disgust. He writes, "College men in this outfit do not carry out Miss Gorham's 'noblesse oblige' doctrine in regard to assuming the burden of leadership. Ally Cornog has accepted a 'dog-rubber's' job, and Dave Harry is studying Russian. As for me, can you picture me a corporal of the guard posting a relief, wearing a 'gat' on my right hip, 'chasing' a detail of long-haired, unshaven prisoners clad in dungarees around to their chow, and answering a hundred and one fool questions in that mad house of a guard room."

CLIFFORD RIGGS GILLAM - - - - - Naval Aviation. See Junior Section

ARTHUR TYSON GROOME - - - - - Corporal, Infantry, Overseas

ERVIN LINCOLN HALL

2nd Lieutenant, Field Artillery

"I would not have missed the experience I received as a private and officer in the Field Artillery for anything I know of. Coming in contact with men from all parts of the country is an education which cannot be obtained from books. * * * My idea, which I believe is shared by every F. A. man is that it is the greatest branch of the service, for proof of which, ask Andy Simpson what he thinks."

RALF LEE HARTWELL Base Hospital 34, Overseas

Ralf had not been two months out of the hospital with a severe attack of pneumonia before he enlisted in the Ambulance Corps, May, 1917. He went across with his unit in December, and stuck to the game many months after it was all over. He expects to return to College in the fall.

JAMES MINSHALL HOLDEN - - Lieutenant, Infantry. See Junior Section

WILLIAM YATES IRWIN, JR.
Sergeant, Chemical Warfare Service

"The hard-boiled guy said gas was "Bunk."
Said it was harmless, only stunk;
And that the cock-eyed world he'd tell
That all gas masks could go to—well,
They sent hard-boiled up to the line;
Fritz spilled the mustard good and fine;
And yet some folks still wonder why
"Twas flowers for the hard-boiled guy."

JESSE GEARING JOHNSON - Ensign, U. S. N.

"Stuge planned to murder me. Got me a ride in a seaplane. After about half an hour of flying, our motor stopped at an altitude of 2,000 feet. So we went down. When we hit the ocean, I went right on through my seat. We were about fifteen miles from shore. Monkeyed around with a Liberty Motor on the bum until picked up by a transport in answer to the rockets we were sending up. During the night, while we were being towed ashore, the plane sank to the bottom of the bay."

'20 AT WAR

1920 in the Trench Mortar Battery

GEORGE CORWIN HOLMES

PHILIP WITHERSPOON HUNT - - - - - Private

CARL FRANKLIN MICHAEL - - - - - First Lieutenant

CLINTON ELMER WALTER, JR. - - - - - Corporal

RUSSELL ATLEE YARNALL - - - - - Sergeant

"We started out with 110 days of straight service down in Lorraine followed without rest by campaigns on the Champagne front, Soissons-Rheims salient, St. Mihiel salient, Argonne woods and in front of Verdun. The armistice was signed when we were within a few kilometers of Sedan."

LIEUT. CARL F. MICHAEL

"The other night we were on our way back from our positions, and the Boche aviators were everywhere overhead, seeking anything to bomb. We were all in a big open wagon, and the men were dead tired and hungry. It was a beautiful moonlight night, and down from the skies, like a hawk swooping for its prey, came an avion of the black crosses, and let loose all four of his bombs on us, and then disappeared into the darkness."

HALCYON

CLINTON ELMER WALTER - - - - - 117th Trench Mortar Battery

"For days before the start of the battle we had been expecting it every night. * * *
An hour before the scheduled time for the beginning of the enemy's artillery operations, our own guns began pounding away with a steady thunder at Fritz's divisions. Suddenly there was a whine, a little different from those of our own shells, followed by a muffled report as a German gas shell landed a couple of hundred yards away. All was quiet for several minutes, and then suddenly hell broke loose."

PHILIP HUNT

We haven't been able to glean much from Phil directly about his service with the T. M. B., but we read a newspaper account some time ago of an interview with a wounded man of the 117th, who declared that "one of the bravest soldiers in the organization was a Phil Hunt, of Wayne."

JAMES HORACE MENDENHALL - - - - - Naval Aviation

Horace had only been in the snappy uniform of an aviator a month when the armistice was signed, and his chances for high flying went up the spout.

WILLIAM HENRY NORRIS - - - - - Infantry

Bill and A. Mitchell Palmer were both doing essential War Work at Washington. They bunked together, only Bill was no Custodian. He was in the Adjutant General's Office, holding down a job "that is worse than boning for the final exams."

CHESTER WILLETS VANDERBILT - - - - - Ensign, U. S. Navy

"Come on down. I'd like to show you over a ship, for you can't begin to realize how darn little I know about the Navy."

LLOYD AGNEW VORHEES - - - - - U. S. Marine Corps

Lloyd tried harder than the Boches to get to Paris, but he only got to Paris Island with the Marines.

EARLE RASH WHEATLEY - - - - - Base Hospital 20, Overseas

We hear that "Wheat" once sought a little respite from the trials and toils of Ambulance work and took a trip through La Belle France, stopping for some time at Monte Carlo. We marvel that he ever got away, considering that middle name of his.

CLARENCE HOWARD YODER - - - - - 2nd Lieutenant, Infantry

WAR RECORD

Swarthmore War Record

In compiling a war record of this character, there must of necessity be many inaccuracies and many cases of incomplete information. Every effort has been made, however, to secure an account of the name and service of every Swarthmorean, and the following is as complete a record as may be presented, considering the scarcity of available information and of space in which to present it.

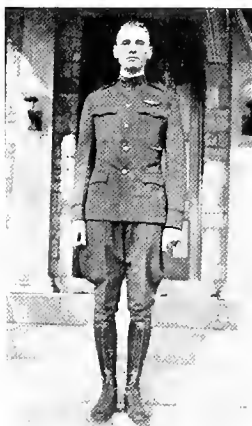

A count of the number of Swarthmoreans in actual military service shows a total of five hundred and sixteen. Subtracting one hundred and sixty-two men who were in the Students' Army Training Corps, either at Swarthmore or other institutions, there remain more than three hundred and fifty who saw service outside of college halls. It is safe to say that this number represents more than fifty per cent. of the total number of Swarthmoreans of military age. This count gives no consideration to the large number of Swarthmore men and women who served in various branches of non-military war work. These figures tell better than words the story of Swarthmore's patriotism and unselfish sacrifice.

The following list will give an idea of the diversity of service rendered by Swarthmoreans, and of their preferences for different branches of the service.

Students Army Training Corps	- - - - -	162

One hundred and thirty-three Swarthmoreans were overseas in active military service. Ten Swarthmore men and one professor met death while in their country's service. Four of these casualties were from the class of '19, the class which actually contributed the greatest number of men to the service, and which suffered the most from the war. The following statistics show that fifty-seven '19ers were in the service. While this number is not as great as that shown by '21 and '22, it must be remembered that most of the men of the latter classes were in the S. A. T. C.

HALCYON

A very large proportion of the total number of Swarthmoreans who went into the service won commissions. In her quota of officers, Swarthmore boasts of one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, twelve majors, twenty-seven captains, fifteen ensigns, and one hundred and fifteen lieutenants. While less is known about the number of Swarthmoreans who were non-commissioned officers, it is certain that there were two sergeant-majors, two master engineers, twenty-six sergeants, and fifteen corporals.

Back of the Lines

It is often difficult to differentiate between the first-line men and the men "back of the lines." In many cases the contribution of the latter—both men and women of Swarthmore—meant more than just "essential war work," and in one case it meant the supreme sacrifice. Professor Roy B. Pace gave up his life in service "back of the lines." Swarthmore boasted about half a hundred non-combatant war workers, whose service we have attempted to indicate in the following record:

There was an audible sigh of relief issuing from anxious co-ed hearts when the news came that flying cadets were to be given an opportunity to return to college. There was another point of advantage, too. Presenting a colorful relief among the predominance of common khaki appeared the smart attire of olive drab, with the cadet cap and gold braid.

Recovered from Temple University one perpetual "pep" machine belonging to Swarthmore College and Junior Class. This machine is the only one of its kind in existence, for it has the power to pull Junior athletics out of any sort of a hole, whether it be hockey, gym, swimming, or track, and carry the class to a glorious victory. No other machine has been invented to drive away the "blues" as speedily as this one—bubbling over with animation and fun.

George is one of those fellows whose "number" we never seem to get. When we see him peering benignly out at us through his glasses, his big, hulking frame ornamenting the Pet, our first assumption is that he's a man whose attention never wanders far from the straight and narrow path of study, and that his roughest pastime is watching the Passing Show in the front hall. But it is interesting to note that shy little George was a very valuable asset to the football team last fall, and, also that he's something of a swimmer. One may predict, that, provided he remains invulnerable to the female of the species, he will make good in proportion to his 208 pounds.

"Where is the normal man?" the world doth cry.
"Where is a man not of the Dickens type,
No freak; with body strong, a swimmer fine,
A noble, broad, and scientific mind,
An unassuming, conscientious soul,
To co-eds' taste too bashful, yea too cold?"
Let Swarthmore make reply, "'Tis Jenks."

She is the twin of Betty C.,
And so, to aggravate confusion,
They're wives, completing the illusion.
And when they're called upon the 'phones,
We curse the name of Betty Jones.

PRESTON HENRY JUDD

ELKLAND

Latin

He plays the organ in the church,
For him the Sunday Schools all search.
A genius with the drawing pencil,
And paints with brushes and with stencil,
Just look at our old Soph Show scenery,
Combined interiors, ships, and greenery.
What will he be? Gaze at his tie,
A polka-dotted butterfly,
And you will know, if you're a guesser,
That he will be a Greek professor.

They called him "a dashing young lieutenant." Is he dashing? Witness his century sprints on the cinder path. Is he young? Well, hardly, considering his mature management of Soph Show scenery, and the Phoenix. Is he a lieutenant? Well, we caught a glimpse of the bars and leather puts one day, but the very next he had donned "cits" and returned to lab and lecture.

GEORGE BROWN LEEDER

UPLAND

Chemistry

George rides the trolleys from Chester to Swarthmore daily, and should be an authority on local transportation. He knows each individual P. R. T. car by sound, and can tell you the number of square wheels on each.

George is one of that rare type called pluggers. He plods along his quiet way, and, though he is no speed king, he always gets what he goes after. While his name has never broken into big headlines, he has lately been much before the public eye, snapping the pictures which beautify the pages of this mighty HALCYON.

HALCYON

LUCY LIPPINCOTT

RIVERTON, N. J.

Economics

Lucy is famous for: 1—Her rep as a good sport, 2—her delightful dancing, 3—her gymnastic gyrations, 4—her sovereign swing of the hockey stick, 5—(emphatically) her reputed relatives. So much the last, that we may parody "Smiles":

There are relatives who come to see us,
There are relatives we go to see;
There are relatives of all conditions,
Those we like, and those we'd like to flee.
But when some bewail their "sad" relations,
She never has to fear on any score;
Hers are all the nicest of creations,
For they all come to old Swarthmore.

MARTHA GERTRUDE McCABE

SELBYVILLE, DEL.

English

Trudie has a way—
No pouring over books all day, yet marks that are the envy of her friends;
No noisy rough-housing, but always ready for a laugh;
No wasted time before the glass, but always neat and trim;
No loud arguing, but diplomacy that wins us all.

LETITIA TYLER McNEEL

English

But I love Shakespeah, don't you? Don't you want to go in town with me tomorrow night to heah Galli-Curci? Aunt Priscilla says she's perfectly precious and her voice is simply lovely. Oh, deah, there goes the bell and I haven't done my dec. But I don't care, I'd so much rathah talk to you. I like you so much."

JUNIORS

HELEN VOGDES MACARTNEY

PHILADELPHIA

Latin

Helen makes friends that to most of us are mere acquaintances. They are her studies. She takes time to go to the very heart of Greece and Rome. She also befriends stray, lone members of the faculty with anonymous bunches of flowers and other kindnesses. But she is afraid of athletics, and trembles at sight of the swimming pool. She never frolics like a giddy D. A. S. or G. I. K., but she has certainly caught the spark of learning's fire.

HELEN MOORE MARTIN

WEST CHESTER

English

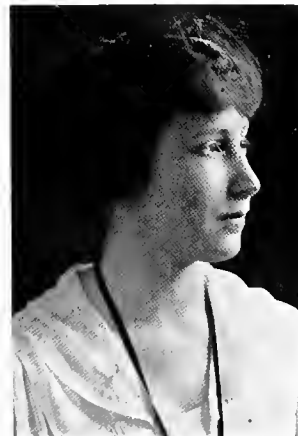

Helen comes all the way from West Chester, bright and early every morning. But coat and hat, a ton of books, and a windy day never ruffle her. Take a look at her in an eight o'clock class. Every hair is in place, the clean white pekay collar is creaseless and spotless, and from the serene expression on her face you would think she was a lady of leisure rather than a hard-working, train-traveling, book-burdened college girl.

SARA JANE MAYHEW

BRIDGETON, N. J.

History

When at college Sara landed,
She was all a Soph demanded,
Wore her hair a-hanging, so,
With a great big ribbon bow.
Found the men so queer and strange,
But oh, oh, oh, how times do change.
Now she likes to dance and dress,
She has style, you must confess.
A secret I will tell you then,
Shush! She doesn't hate the men.

HALCYON

ETHEL GIBBONS MEANS

SWARTHMORE

German

A pink and white blond who has attained the height of 5 feet 10 inches has outgrown the conventional characteristics which we usually attribute to that species. In physically reaching a greater elevation, she attains a greater elevation of thought. In Chautauqua, rather than in a Summer hotel, she realizes the joy of a vacation.

IDA ELIZABETH MEIGS

PHILADELPHIA

Economics

Prexy once said: "Make a lot of your opportunities in college."

Ida did. She made:

- A lot of noise.
- A lot of excuses for undone work.
- A lot of trips to the tea-room.
- A lot of fussing in the halls.
- A lot of friends.

CHARLOTTE EMMA MOORE

Mary is a magnet for attracting general information. Is he a preacher? Not by call.
Is he a dancer? More or less.
Is he a fusser? Well I guess.

EMILY LUCILE NOBLE

COLLINGSWOOD, N. J.

Latin

Lucile's art talents have been crowded into the background by Y. W. C. A., Red Cross, and Somerville library duties. We are inclined to blame the College for letting such talents lie dormant, but Lucile is very tolerant of the College. She never criticizes others. No wonder she found Room Inspector such a disagreeable job and made her tours of investigation in the twilight hours, when she could overlook the dust.

Editor's Note: If you think Lucile's "art talents lie dormant," take a look at the 1920 HALCYON.

GLADYS SEAMAN PELL

SADDLE RIVER, N. J.

Economics

Gladys would be at home as mistress of the White House, as forewoman of a shirtwaist factory, or as principal of an ultra-fashionable boarding school. She would assume any of these responsibilities with dignity, and accomplish the desired result just as satisfactorily and efficiently as she has done with the affairs which 1920 has put in her charge.

A radiant smile and a flash of white teeth—behold “Ramsey.” She makes you think of sunny weather when a gale is blowing. Perhaps it is because she enjoys the out-of-doors so much.

In one respect in particular she has the advantage of the rest of us. Most of us have a debt or two we would like to be rid of, but she has a “Det” to be proud of.

HARRIET HALE RENSHAW

So a Frenchman could admire.

GREGG DAVID REYNOLDS

Yes, it was in the fall of nineteen eighteen. I had the Winton, and we got a crowd to go up to Unionville to a country dance. There were four of us on the front seat. When we got there, there wasn't any music, so I left the bunch there and went to West Chester and brought some musicians back. We danced till two, and then on the way back I went to sleep at the wheel and we nearly crashed through a fence. We're going again next week.

FLORENCE DUNLAP RICHMOND

PHILADELPHIA

History

Although it is a well known fact that only one thing at a time can be done well, Florence defies this principle. She crochets while she studies. Her practical ability points to a future as a business woman, when she will probably fill in her spare time with whatever form of handiwork is then in vogue.

MARY THOMAS ROBERTS

MONTCLAIR, N. J.

English

Who goes out for every class team, and makes it, too? Who is champion in tennis doubles? Who was the only girl on the Soph debating team? Why, Mary, but she is very modest. Maybe you don't know it, but Mary is also a poet. Some time ago a poem came out in the Phoenix signed "Our Poet Laureate." Everybody wondered who did it. Finally Mary admitted that she was guilty, as she put it. Mary is being found out, even if she doesn't advertise.

HALCYON

RUTH PRATT RODENBOH

WEST CHESTER

English

There is something about Ruth,—perhaps it is her smile,—that brings all kinds of delightful thoughts into your mind: blue sky and open spaces, the smell of new mown hay, long tramps over the hills, and an open fire and apple dumplings waiting at home! And that is a mighty pleasant picture to call up within the classic and cloistered confines of our Alma Mater.

ELEANOR YORKE SHARTEL

NEOSHO, MO.

History

Experience at the Universities of Michigan and Missouri has shown Eleanor how to get more A's, mail, food, trips to town, invitations to dances and SLEEP than anyone else in the class. With a sigh of relief she will put "The New Republic" on the shelf, hang a stray coat in the closet, and getting out some tissue paper, calmly begin to clean her ring.

"My dear, I had the most successful time in town today—didn't get lost once. I have a new system; whenever I finish an errand I go back to Broad Street station and start again."

HELEN ELIZABETH SIGLER

Biology

We see her often with Dotty Coffin,
Two figures slim and slight.

From Ioway they've come to stay
We say they did just right.

Which fills her hearers with delight.

With eyes so bright, and figure light,
She dances on through all the night.

What is that flash upon the landscape, that riot of color that rushes up the asphaltum? There is black and white striping that puts Michael's gates to shame, there is a burst of orange underneath the straw-colored coat, and perhaps a glimpse of deep pink sweater can be seen beneath. But there is a more serious side to the picture. The arms of this colorful creation are loaded down with sombre books,—thick, solemn, worn-out books,—and if you will peep under the smart velvet hat you will see the same face that looked out from the stiff black garb of Mrs. Stonington in the Sophomore Show.

CORNELIA MILLER STABLER

HAROLD THEODORE STUBBS

OXFORD

Biology

When we think of "stubbs" we usually think of theater tickets, pens, or even cigars, but here we have something entirely different. He came here along with the rest of us and has made himself conspicuous ever since by keeping out of things. However, he fooled us all one time when he went to a masquerade college dance camouflaged as a blushing maiden and being led by the arm of a would-be ruffian, Preston Judd. GOOD NIGHT.

HALCYON

JOHN FRANKLIN STYER

CONCORDVILLE

John didn't have to put on khaki like the rest of us to take part in the war; and yet he did more shooting than the whole of Unit Number 332 combined. He performed his duties like a plain-clothes man, often working unawares. The casualty list attributable to J. F. S. is contained between the covers of this publication. His instrument of torture is a small black box, which is exploded by pressure upon a rubber bulb.

Well, girls, may I come in and piece with you a bit? Piece—yes—what's so funny about that? We always "go piecing" in Punxsutawney. My crackers were all—so I thought I'd come in and get some of yours. Yes, I am feeling pretty tired, I had classes all morning, and this afternoon it was my turn to bring the Phoenix down from Wallingford and help with the mailing list; then we had exec meeting to-night, and after that I did some typewriting for Dr. Ellis.

Well, I guess I'd better go to bed along. Good-night.

This is another one of the boys who have made Millville famous. When Erd first came here he loyally upheld the reputation of his fellow townsmen by his hard work and opposition to fussing. In the first respect he is still true to tradition, but in the second—well, the folks down in Jersey would never know him now. College dances and twilight walks are a regular part of his schedule, and it is a lean week for the tea room when Erd doesn't get there.

Political Science

"Dutch" is the quiet sort of a chap whose entrance into college was unheralded and unsung; who did not spring suddenly into the limelight of publicity and the height of popularity, but who grew steadily into the friendship of his fellows and into a big place in student life. He isn't very large and his voice isn't any larger, but on the basketball floor he gives ample expression to the ability concealed beneath his quiet exterior. The same cool head and clear brain which have made him a basketball captain have also made him a leader in class and college activities.

A War Year

By DREW PEARSON, Editor

Since the opinion of an editor who has piloted his sheet through the rocky shoals of a war year is a trifle more prejudiced than the opinion of a mother who has just looked upon her first-born, perhaps it would be better for me to tell not what the Phoenix did, but what it tried to do, and to allow you to be your own judges of its success.

The Phoenix had three main objects in view during the past year. These were to keep in close touch with Swarthmore's sons in the Service, to knit the Alumni closer than ever to their Alma Mater, and in the constant unrest of the post-war period, to aid in directing college sentiment and student opinion towards the ultimate right.

In its attempt to keep in close touch with the Swarthmore men in the Service, the Phoenix detailed certain members of its staff to bombard the men, their parents, and their friends with constant letters of inquiry as to their whereabouts and their work. With this information the Phoenix published three Service Directories which were as complete as possible, and which aided materially in compiling the permanent Service Record for the college. The Phoenix also made a reduced subscription rate of one dollar for all men in the Service, and waged a campaign in order to get other Swarthmoreans to subscribe for the boys. Although this campaign fell short by one hundred dollars, we continued to send the Phoenix to every man at our own expense. Thanks to various Swarthmoreans in the Service, the Phoenix was also able to print each week a specially prepared feature story which told of the different phases of war work in more detailed form.

At the start of the college year, the Phoenix pushed a campaign to increase its circulation, with the result that several hundred more Alumni now receive the Phoenix and the news from Swarthmore than ever before in the history of the college.

Probably in no other year in the history of the college has there been such opportunity for editorial discussion. For this year has seen its red-hot militarists and its conscientious objectors, its collegiate Bolsheviks and its collegiate capitalists. It has been a plastic year, a year of changes. The Phoenix has endeavored to do what it could in its small way to point out and fight for that policy which seemed to be for the best interests of Swarthmore. Sometimes it has been right; sometimes it has been wrong. The most important policies for which it fought are: rifles on the campus, the elimination of goat-feathers, the betterment of scholarship, a system of universal and required athletics, and deferred pledging into fraternities.

One other thing: In a year when even some of the big New York publications failed to come off the press, the Phoenix missed not one issue. Once, when our printers were laid off with influenza, we were two days late. But we got out our issue, and continued to do so in spite of the flu, the restrictions prohibiting men to leave the campus, and the irregularity of the second class mail. And the point I am getting at is that it would have been impossible for us to do this had it not been for the support which the women gave us. As newspapermen, the women were naturally not a howling success at the start. But they weren't afraid of the "dirty work"; they stuck, and they improved with time. Many of them stuck in spite of the fact that they knew that they would get nothing in return. May I take this opportunity to thank these women who made possible the first issues of the Phoenix.

The Thirty-fifth Halcyon

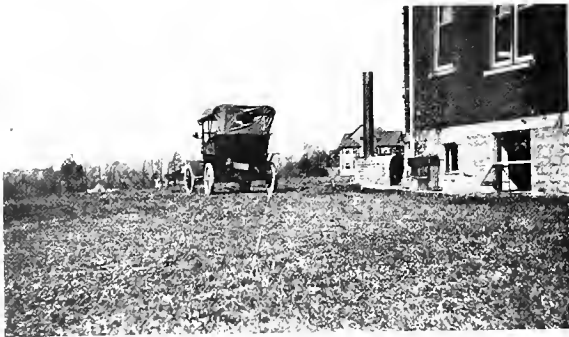

The fact that it is the thirty-fifth HALCYON is important only in the light of the fact that everybody thought the thirty-fourth was going to be the last for a while. A year ago when Mars was solemnly taking the toll of the Swarthmore activities—even the Soph Show went—people talked of a HALCYON that would be “a mere historical record,” a sort of a post-mortem on Swarthmore as she used to be!

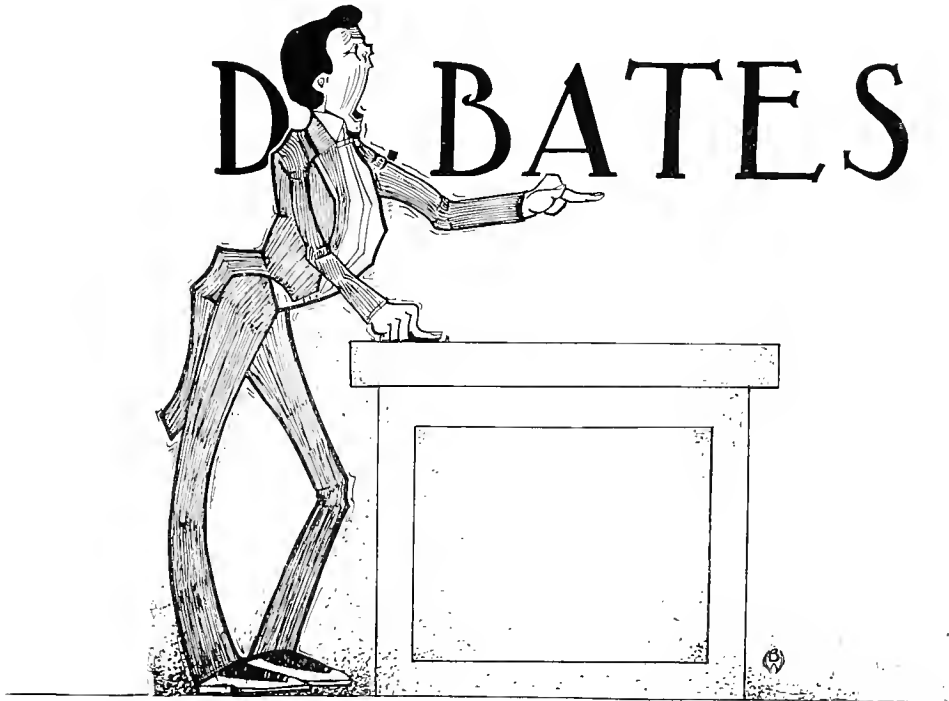

And that was the basis on which the 1920 staff started to work. You have before you the result of the work of the staff. We need no longer praise our book to high heaven like we did to sell it, for it is sold—600 copies of it—a hundred more than ever before. So now we are modest. We leave it to your judgment whether we were warranted in departing from that first injunction about the historical record, and whether the departure was a success.

Now that the curtain has gone down on the last act, it is the logical time for bouquets. Yes, there is a satisfaction in shaking hands all round and thanking ourselves and each other for the part we have all played in turning out The Book. But the genuine satisfaction comes in the realization of a task accomplished and—if you but enjoy our Book—of a task well done.

THE CAST OF CAPTAIN JINKS

“Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines”

“He didn’t get my horseshoe!” And with these words from the proudly victorious newsboy, the curtain fell, and the Sophomore Show of the Class of ’1920 was a thing of the past—passed, but not to be forgotten.

It wasn’t like the Soph Shows of other days. It mingled a variety of delightful musical comedy, skillful acting, and scenes and dances that carried the audience back to the by-gone days in the early seventies, when Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines courted and won the fair Madame Trentoni.

Cornelia Stabler, in the role of Madame Trentoni, played the part of the much feted belle of the stage, of the anxious, then disappointed, lover, and finally of the maiden happy in the realization of the fulfillment of life’s greatest hopes, and she played it with an ease and naturalness which gave credit not only to herself but as well to Miss Elizabeth Oliver, coach of the production.

Leon Pearson, as the little newsboy, kept the audience in constant shrieks of laughter during the tense scenes, when the silver lining was deeply hidden from the eyes of his adored Madame Trentoni. And, from the beginning of the play, when he took boyish delight in pointing out the wrong lady to the “gentlemen of the press,” up to the very end, when he rescued his hard-earned horseshoe wreath from the sturdy policeman, he was welcomed with laughter and applause whenever he appeared upon the scene.

Thomas L. Eagan was the happy, gaily clad Captain Jinks. He played his part ably, and in spite of his early partners and later rivals, Charley Wassman and Frank Jenkins, he persevered till the end, when to the relief of all, he won the much sought-after Madame Trentoni. As for Papa Belliarti, no one could have been better fitted for that part than Bill Irwin, with his soft deep voice and deliberate fatherly ways. Mary Campbell made a very energetic elderly aunt, Charlotte Moore, the deaf and dumb girl, and Letitia McNeel, Mrs. Jinks. They all played their parts with remarkable skill.

An account of 1920’s Soph Show would not be complete if it failed to pass out a little bouquet to the clever sextette of dancers, Hope Richardson, Lucy Penrose, Beatrice

Line Commentaire

Whiteside, Lucy Lippincott, Helen Sigler and Dorothy Coffin. Their inimitable interludes seasoned the drear dialogue with a beauty and grace which we had never hoped to enjoy this side of the "Forest." A pleasure of a somewhat different sort was offered by the jolly jiggers of the sailor's horn pipe, which started the play in a rollicking spirit of good time.

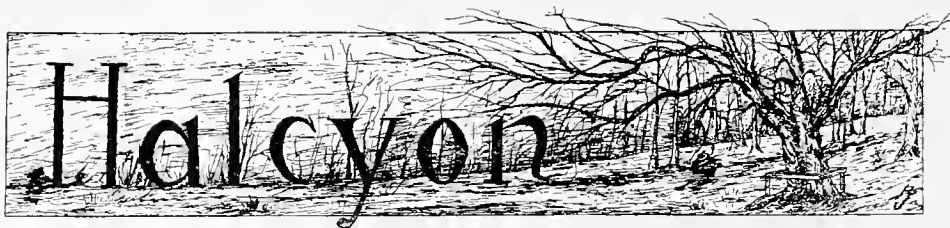

But let us not forget the men behind the lines, to whom much of the success of the show was due, for with Cliff Gillam as business manager, and Dave Klauder as stage manager, the whole performance went "over the top" in a way that reflected creditably on their managership, and made "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines" the big success it proved to be.

And, when the play was over, and the curtain fell for the last time, there was a feeling of regret among the members of the Class of 1920, that the happy hours spent with Captain Jinks were really over. And yet, there was consolation in the thought that they could be lived all over again, whenever one felt like turning to that chapter in Life's Memory Book.

This Year's Guide to Theatre Goers

FOUNDER'S DAY PLAY—Nothing doing.

SOPH SHOW—A noisy hour party for Freshmen the first week of college. The first Soph Show was acted a thousand years ago. Since that time, Captain Jinks has been the only one worth wasting a war tax on.

GLEE CLUB CONCERT—This is our concertless year.

PIRATES OF PENZANCE—A delightful musical comedy, acted with extreme gusto and laissezfaire, and passed by the Pennsylvania Board of Censors. The principal song hit was, "Ain't It Hell to Be a Belgian Baby?"

HAMBURG SHOW—Save money from the other shows and see them all taken off here.

DEC. CONTEST—Leading roles played by Pearson Bros.

FOURTH WEST NOISY HOUR PARTY—Scarf dance——(censored).

Junior Recitals

ISABEL S. JACOBS in "Daddy Long Legs"

On Tuesday evening, February 25, Isabel S. Jacobs gave as her Junior Recital, Jean Webster's "Daddy Long Legs." The play involves the story of a little orphan girl, who, after suffering numerous hardships in the orphanage, goes to college, and in the end marries her benefactor. All agreed that Isabel impersonated the many characters most skillfully, and in a way that reflected creditably not only upon herself, but also upon Miss Elizabeth Oliver, who coached the recital. And those of us who heard Isabel read will not forget the little phrase, "Yes, ma'am, no ma'am and smile," nor the way she said it, for that alone has made her famous in the eyes of her fellow students.

CORNELIA M. STABLER in "Polly With a Past"

"Polly With a Past" was given in a most talented way by Cornelia M. Stabler on the evening of March 20th. "Cornie" brought her listeners to tears and laughter as she skillfully told the story of Polly, the little maid of all work, who impersonated a French Vampire to help a friend win the girl he loved, and in the end married that friend herself. "Cornie," showed unusual talent in all the roles she played, the French woman, with the true Parisian accent; Polly; Rex, the rich man's son; the old gardener with his Irish brogue; and Mr. Prentiss, the kind old uncle.

Our only regret was that we did not have more such talented people in our class, to bring us honor, and entertain in such a delightful way.

FOOTBALL

Review of the 1918 Season

After a long period of uncertainty and delay, the 1918 football team finally got away to a flying start and successfully bucked its way through a short but strenuous schedule of six games, emerging with four victories to its credit as against two defeats. To begin with, the influenza epidemic played havoc with the schedule which had been arranged for the team, and game after game had to be cancelled on account of the quarantine. Early in the season, Coach Mercer was so occupied with his duties as contract surgeon for the S. A. T. C. that he was able to devote very little time to the team. However, in spite of all setbacks, a large squad, including three letter men and several scrubs from last year's squad, reported consistently for practice and succeeded in getting into fair fighting trim for the opening contest.

Ursinus was the first victim of the Garnet steam roller and was flattened out to the tune of 51 to 7. In their initial game, the Quaker forwards were impregnable, and the backfield showed a powerful attack. A week later, the team ran up 20 points against Pennsylvania and threatened to shut out the Big Quakers. A number of final quarter substitutions weakened Swarthmore sufficiently to allow Pennsylvania to score a pair of touchdowns. In the Penn game began the series of injuries which gradually wore down the strength of the team. Johnny Earp, the brilliant halfback, whose 72-yard run featured the game, received an injury to his knee which kept him on the bench for the remainder of the season.

regulars were so severely injured as to make them unable to play in the last game of the season.

On Thanksgiving day, the weakened Garnet eleven faced the husky P. M. C. team at Chester, and after a sixty-minute scramble in a drizzling rain on a muddy field, came off with a final victory.

At the beginning of the season, there were six first string backfield candidates, Stow, Carter, White, Geiges, Gardner, and Earp, between whom there was so little difference as to make it difficult to decide which to eliminate in picking a backfield. Of these, only Geiges escaped more or less serious injury during the season, and in the final game only Geiges, Carter, and White were able to play. The same line, however, composed of Clancey, Larkin, Conahy, Walker, Chandler, Dudley, and Howell, bore the brunt of opposing attacks until the final game, when Chandler and Howell were unable to play.

The first football defeat against Swarthmore on the new athletic field was tallied by a patched up League Island Navy Yard team, and was accomplished mainly by the all round efforts of one Ben Boynton, a former all-American quarterback. With all their "pep" drained by the Penn game, the Garnet players fought a hard, struggling battle against the service men, and lost by one touchdown, 6-2.

Staging a quick comeback, they avenged their defeat by shutting out Delaware and scoring 29 points in a game full of sensational, brilliant plays. Pard Larkin, the stellar tackle, played a most conspicuous part in this victory, successfully usurping every function of line or backfield man.

Then came the second Penn game, which gave the University a chance to avenge its earlier defeat. It was a worn-down Swarthmore team which met the big Quakers, one which played as hard but not as well as it had been coached, and one which was destined to lose, but which, after all, lost only by an illegal touchdown made from a fumble. If the team was worn down when it went into the Pennsylvania fracas, it was only a semblance of its once powerful self when it left Franklin Field. Five

“Bill” Ridpath, captain-elect of the 1918 team, was in the Naval Reserve and was unable to return to college. No one was elected to take his place, but “Cap” Howell, a hard working end, served as acting-captain in most of the games. “Pard” Larkin, the giant tackle, whose work featured every game, was elected captain for the 1919 eleven. His election to the captaincy in his Sophomore year is a unique honor, but it is one which comes as a reward to a player who has made an unusual record in Swarthmore football history. Larkin has played during two seasons, and has not missed a single second of any game during that time. He can do, and has done, anything in the list of football achieve-

The 1918 team was a typical war-time Mercer-coached team, a new team of good individual football players, quickly welded into a powerful fighting unit by "Doc's" genius as a coach and as a leader of fighting men.

It was a team which perhaps lacked the football ability of the veteran teams of former years, but never their fighting spirit; a team which a long series of injuries may have deprived of overwhelming victories, but never of the glory of its achievement.

BASKETBALL

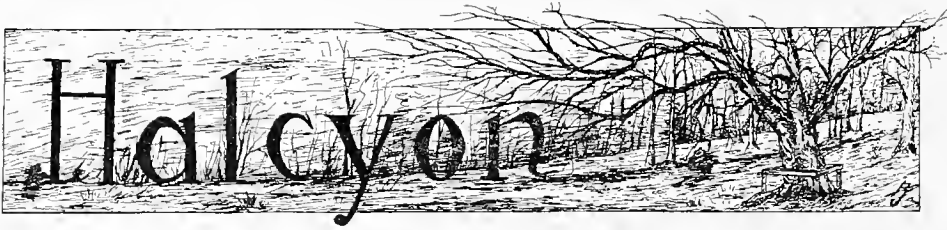

Basketball Review

Judged by its record of victories and defeats, the 1919 basketball team was not highly successful. At the beginning of the season, more than forty candidates responded to Coach Mercer's call, among them all of last year's veterans except Donnelly and Yoder, and a wealth of experienced new men besides. It was then that prospects looked bright for the best Garnet basketball team in years.

That the team lost six games out of eleven, that it remained on a dead level, showing little if any improvement from the beginning of the season to the end, may be ascribed to one thing, a constant shifting of the lineup, due to a number of unavoidable causes. The team which started the opening contest was a Sophomore team composed of Place, Carter, Stow, Clancey, and Larkin. Before the season had progressed far, Benjamin showed so much improvement that he displaced Carter in the lineup. With this combination, the team won from P. M. C. and Ursinus, and lost to the Navy and Princeton. Stow suffered a sprained ankle in the Ursinus game which kept him out of the Army game. Despite the handicap of his absence, the Garnet passers held to the good old Quaker custom of defeating the cadets. Captain "Dutch" Yoder returned from Camp Grant just in time to break into the lineup for a few minutes in the first Penn game. The acquisition of Yoder balanced the loss of Stow who withdrew for the remainder of the season because of ineligibility.

For the remainder of the season, the personnel of the team was constantly changing due to the illness of different players at various times. Victories were tallied against Delaware and Dickinson, while defeats were registered against the Garnet in the last three games of the season by Rutgers, Lafayette, and Pennsylvania.

The 1919 team was a good team; the only real regret that can be felt is that it did not greatly improve as the season progressed. The only defeat which approached the dimensions of a disaster was that administered by the Navy. That the Big Quakers, the unbeatable Intercollegiate champions, twice doubled the score on the Little Quakers is little cause for shame. On the other hand, Swarthmore's victories over the Army and Delaware were in the nature of notable achievements.

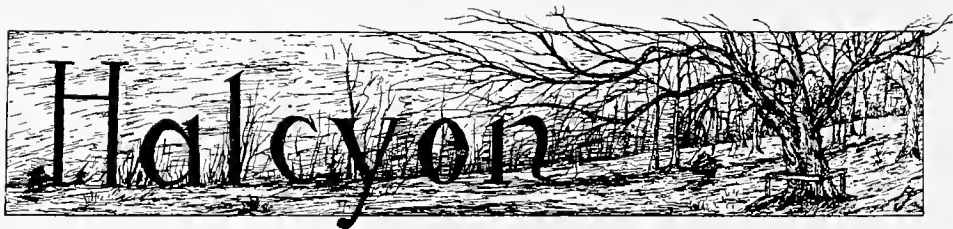

The succeeding season bears a promise of better things, for not one of this year's team will be lost by graduation.

BASEBALL

Baseball Review

Of all the spring sports, baseball was the most fortunate in being, at the beginning of the season, very little affected by the War. Captain Carris, Ogden, Cornog, Ewell, Nay, and Boughton were the veterans on hand, and Coach Bettger had no difficulty in filling the open positions with three Freshmen, Carter, White, and Webb. Nay, Carnog, and Ewell were later called into the service, but by that time Larkin, Katzenback, and Yoder had been well groomed to take their places.

The 1918 season was the third and last in which the famous Ogden-Carris battery was to win games for Swarthmore, and win games it did. "Jawn" and "Eddie" hardly needed the support of the rest of the team, but always found it forthcoming when they did need it. Furthermore, while the Ogden-Carris combine was holding opposing teams to zero scores, the Garnet batsmiths were slamming out numerous runs to raise Swarthmore's total.

Out of the seven games played, only two were lost. It is a particularly irritating fact that both of those were lost to Pennsylvania. The first Penn game was the opening contest for Swarthmore, and was an air-tight battle which lasted fourteen innings before the ice was broken by Hobey Light's husky swat. The second loss was the Commencement Day game, and carried with it the blighting humiliation of having the "old grads" see the Red and Blue slam out seven runs against two for the Garnet.

Columbia put up a game fight, but was beaten by a 3 to 2 score. Then the Navy, Lehigh, Delaware, and New York University, in close succession, were victims of the prowess of Ogden's arm by the shut-out route. The coat of whitewash administered to the "Middies" who had not been shut out since time immemorial, was the biggest triumph of a successful season.

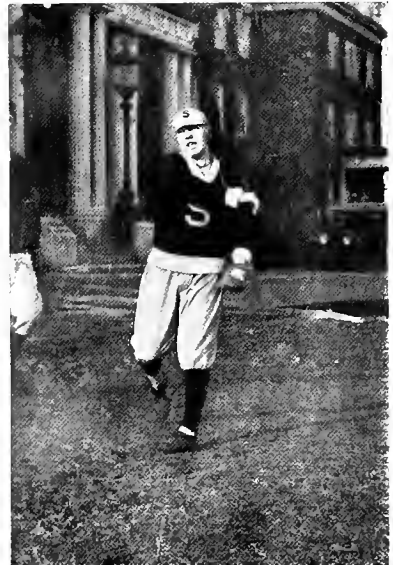

A veteran team, among them Carris, who was re-elected captain, is left for the 1919 season.

Track Review

The 1918 track team was leaderless but victorious. "Walt" Maule was first elected to captain Dr. Mercer's cinder-path athletes, but was lost to Uncle Sam before the season started. The captaincy was then bestowed on "Stuge" Corson, who participated in one meet only before he received his call to Naval Aviation. Under "Doc's" competent coaching, however, the team was successful in spite of the loss of these veterans, and scored victories in three dual meets out of four, besides making a creditable showing in the big Middle States Intercollegiates.

The season opened auspiciously with an easy victory over Johns Hopkins, whose supremacy in the field events and hurdles failed to balance the Garnet victories in the runs. At the Penn Relays a week later, Chandler, the Freshman weight star, was entered in the pentathlon, but failed to qualify for the finals. Swarthmore's relay team running in the Middle Atlantic States Championship Race won a close second. Delaware and Haverford both fell easy victims before the prowess of the Garnet runners.

In the Middle States Intercollegiates, Swarthmore was outpointed by Bruce's big Lafayette team, but won second place in the meet by a wide margin.

The only conspicuous weakness of the 1918 team lay in its lack of hurdlers. Its main strength lay in the consistency with which Klauder, in the sprints, Ford in the quarter mile and high jump, Pierce in the two mile, and Chandler in the weight events, tallied points for the Garnet. Chandler never failed to score with the shot, discus and javelin, and was the high point scorer in the Middle States Intercollegiates, winning two firsts and a second. Al Pierce, captain-elect of the 1919 team, easily won the two mile race in every meet.

Lacrosse Review

When Dr. Mercer added to his springtime burdens by taking charge of the 1918 lacrosse squad, he gave utterance to the calm confidence so typical of the man by saying, "We haven't got a lacrosse team now, but we're going to have one soon." The first part of his statement none doubted, because it was lamentably self-evident. Only two letter men were out for the team and the remainder of the squad was weak and inexperienced.

The results of the first four games were anything but encouraging for they tallied naught but goose eggs for Swarthmore, while the Navy, Lehigh, Pennsylvania, and Hopkins were credited with substantial scores. These games were all played in hostile territory.

The first appearance of the team on the home grounds was the occasion for the first indication that Coach Mercer had infused enough skill and aggressiveness into it to make true his statement, "We're going to have one." Pennsylvania was defeated by one point after a hard battle. Two days later Yale came to Swarthmore and left with nothing but the small end of a 6-0 score. The last game of the season resulted in a victory over Stevens. Dr. Mercer's prophecy had come true with a vengeance. We had a team. While the Garnet stickmen had lost more games than they had won, according to the old adage, "He who laughs last laughs best," they had every reason to be happy.

One of the best features of the team was that only three players were lost through graduation, leaving a strong squad to stage a comeback for lacrosse, which has been a waning sport at Swarthmore for the last few years. Captain Simpson was elected to lead the team for another season.

Review of the Season

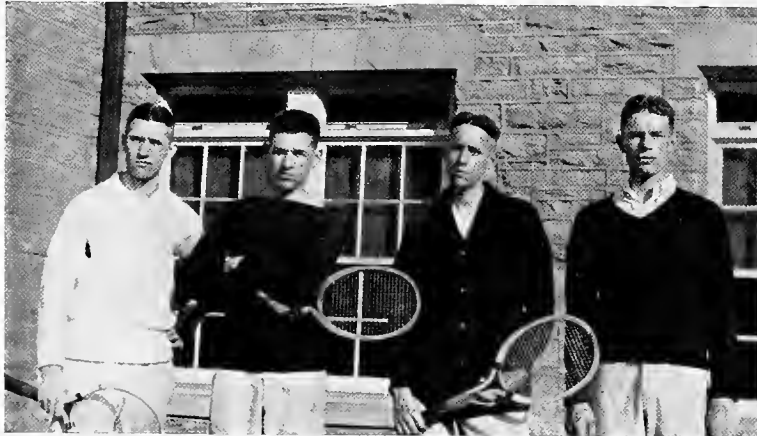

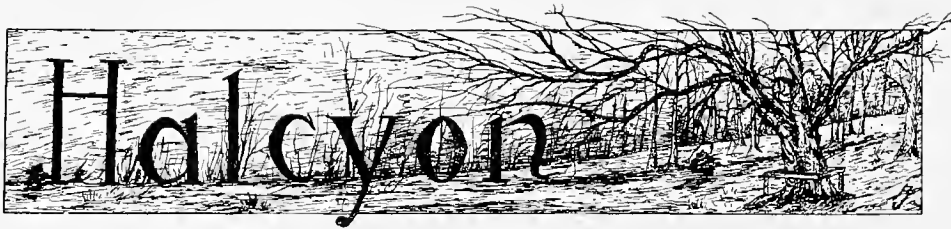

Swimming could not be called a huge success this year if the record of three defeats and one victory alone be considered. Great credit is due, however, to the members of the team for their efforts to keep Swarthmore on the swimming map, for the outlook at the beginning of the season was quite discouraging. With the exception of Atkinson, Wassman, and Jenkins, the team was composed entirely of new men, who show great promise for next season. The team had no coach, so what success it had can be attributed to hard practice and continued interest.

The relay team, composed of Kelsey, Joyce, Jenkins, and Atkinson, although not exceptionally fast, did good work. Kelsey swam the one hundred and two hundred yard dashes. Wassman performed well from the springboard in the fancy diving event, Kelsey also doing good work. Atkinson and Manager Jenkins did some fast work in the sprints. In the plunge, Bliss and McAllister did well, considering that they were new at the game. Captain Tomlinson returned from the service at mid-season and took part in two meets, showing flashes of his old time speed.

Swimming is a rapidly growing sport in inter-collegiate athletics, and its future at Swarthmore appears most promising.

1918 Tennis

The Tennis team, under the direction of Captain D. A. Landis, carried through a very successful season in the spring of 1918. In view of the fact that no Varsity men returned and that the season was unusually short, great credit is due the captain and the men for turning out one of Swarthmore's best tennis teams. The entire schedule was played in less than a month, so that when the last match was played the team had just about found its stride. During the entire season only one match in the doubles was lost. Brown and Dudley formed the first doubles, while the Landis brothers worked together in the other duet.

“DOC”

Prominent among those to whom recognition is due for making our Alma Mater what she is to-day stands E. LeRoy Mercer, the coach, the physician, the man.

Everyone who knows Swarthmore knows the story of Doctor Mercer's brilliant athletic career. At George School, he was a stellar schoolboy champion, holding for a time the interscholastic pole-vault record. Later, at the University of Pennsylvania, he won fame in both football and track, and became known as the best all-round athlete who had ever attended the University. He was a member of the Freshman football and track teams and of the 'Varsity football and track teams for three years. He was all-American fullback and captain of the Penn football team for two years, and a consistent winner in inter-collegiate track meets. His records at the inter-collegiates won a place for him on the American Olympic team of 1912. After graduation from Penn, he remained there one year coaching the Freshman football team.

Such, in brief, is "Doc's" record before coming to the college with which he is now inseparably allied. Each year he has rapidly become more and more an integral part of this little Quaker institution. During his first three years here he was Men's Physical Director, Track Coach, and Assistant Football Coach, and was very successful in each capacity. However, it was the unsettled war time condition of sports during the last two years which brought him forth as the "man of the hour" and the savior of Swarthmore's athletics. He was first made Football Coach and from green material turned out two of the most successful teams which have ever worn the Garnet. Then he was called upon to coach lacrosse in a season when his time was largely occupied by track. Notwithstanding the fact that he had had little lacrosse experience, he developed in a limited time and from the weakest material which ever turned out for a 'Varsity team, a lineup which ended the season victoriously. The latest athletic responsibility that has been thrust upon his shoulders is the position of Basketball Coach.

His unbounded success as a coach is due to two qualities, ability and leadership. His leadership is attributable to his understanding of men, his unfailing good nature, his unassuming modesty, and his calm confidence.

It is not alone by his successful development of athletic teams that "Doc" has earned the gratitude of Swarthmoreans. When a unit of the Students' Army Training Corps was established here, he became the Contract Surgeon for the Swarthmore unit, and served in this capacity during the epidemic of Spanish influenza. Due to his wise precautions and constant care, very few cases of the disease were contracted at the college, none of them fatal. Many lives were doubtless saved by his efficient handling of this situation, as well as that of the smallpox scare in the winter with the attendant wholesale vaccinations.

“Doc” has many positions to fill, but he is a big enough man to fill them all. He faces each new responsibility with quiet confidence and undaunted courage. Under his tutelage Swarthmore’s representatives in four sports have kept the Garnet flag flying high. By his watchfulness, the health of the student body has been safeguarded. He is an ideal type of morally, mentally, and physically clean-cut American manhood, to whom every Swarthmorean is glad to pay tribute.

“Eugene-ic Doc”

Down at Swarthmore, I am told,
Roy Mercer’s the whole show;
Man, he’s into everything,
Everlasting on the go,—
Runs every team about the place;
Can vaccinate them all.

Foot-Ballshevism

All was quiet. A flivver crashed madly over the pebbles as it crawled along. The sky was lit with the dazzling paleness of the setting moon. Judd waved his arms motionlessly to the silent cheerers, who were deafeningly yelling thunders of inaudible whispers. Even the Garnet pennants of vivid purple, frantically waving in the terrific gale of the calm afternoon, were not stirring. To the west the Crum reflected the glow of the dark village as it roared quietly in a frenzy of sluggishness. Not a sound came from the vast mob that was echoing the pandemonium of a peaceful riot. A million voices were blended in one whisper to the sky beneath. And out of the crowded vacancy, a gigantic figure of minute proportions stepped forth, bearing on his chest the scarcely visible legend in flaming letters, "No beer, no work."

A Word of Appreciation

Any account of girls' athletics at Swarthmore College for the season of 1918 and 1919 would be wholly inadequate if Miss Helen Culin, Head of the Department of Physical Education for Women, and her assistant, Miss Florence Rose, were not mentioned. Never before have we had so much "pep," such good organization, better attendance at classes, games, and meets, or better "sporty" times in general.

Two things we have to report as absolutely new; first, a hockey held, on the East front Campus. Little did we dream when we saw the mower and leveler working that we were to have another hockey field, but we really needed it and the Sophs and Freshmen exhibited their talent and trusty arms to great advantage.

MISS HELEN C. CULIN

MISS FLORENCE M. ROSE

The other entirely new institution is a basketball team that may travel. They can travel, too, and come home crowned with glory. Swarthmore will surely become more and more famous when its teams become known in other places. For these two innovations in particular, for the great fun we've had, for her un-failing interest in athletic affairs and for high hopes we have for the future of Swarthmore athletics, we thank Miss Culin.

This Year's Hockey Season—and Prospects

The 'Varsity Hockey Team has lived up to the prophecy of last year's fans. It has a slate on which are written only victories—those over Beechwood, Penn Hall, and Temple College. But we really expected this fine record all along, because our last year's Juniors, being the Class champions, were still with us, the Sophomore and Junior backers were on the job, and with the class of '22 came in some splendid material in the persons of Charlotte Griffen and Grace Gourley.

MARY VERNAM, '19
Captain, 1918

HELEN RAMSEY, '20
Captain-Elect, 1919

The games were never so well attended. A good peppy bunch came down to cheer and sing on every occasion, and "Vernam's mighty stroke," that they sung about, was unfailing.

The right wing, Helen Ramsey, has been elected to succeed Mary Vernam as Captain. Here's wishing her all the good fortune that this year's team has had, all the support they enjoyed, and all the luck they'll ever need!

Interclass Hockey

It was almost to be expected—this championship stuff that was staged by the Class of 1919. They had done the same trick in their Junior year, and their playing this season warranted the expectations that they would do it again in their Senior year. They didn't lose a game; the nearest they came to such a disaster was in the contest with the 1920 team, which placed second in the interclass competition.

A Brilliant Basketball Season

The second game with Penn Hall, on March 13, 1919, ended a season of basketball of which everyone may be proud. Our nucleus of Vernam and Williams, with Dot Darlington, "Marj." Kistler, and the two peppy Freshmen, in the live personages of Elsa Palmer and Anna Heafford, are the people we have to thank.

Out of the nine games played—and nine stiff ones they were—seven were victories. The two defeats we had to suffer were handed out by Temple College and Lansdowne Sigma, both teams composed of ex-varsity people, gym teachers and team coaches. These games were played very early in the season, and our recent victories have buried all memory of defeats.

To our five successes on the home floor, we may add two others, gathered at Penn Hall and Hood College—for our team went on a trip! The explicit purpose was to trim the enemy, and they did. Royal receptions awaited them everywhere, but in return the team simply gave out one trouncing after another. It is generally agreed that next year we should make a regular tour and keep up the same record on all foreign soil.

Speed, team-work and accuracy helped us pile up our points to the number of 224, while our opponents totaled 174.

When the class of 1919 leaves, we lose three players—good all-round athletes—but with "Marj." Kistler as next year's Captain and the good support of Anna Heafford and Elsa Palmer our future is bright with hopes, and next year—we'll be saying—bright with success.

Interclass Basketball

Our athletic Seniors again find themselves at the top of the list in the interclass basketball. Some of the most exciting games of the year were those played against the other classes of girls of our own sort, with the same coaching and the same spirit. All games were well attended, and the Freshmen rejoiced greatly over their single victory. The Sophomores played exceptionally fast and well, which made them victors over all except the Seniors. The standing of the teams follows:

The wearers of the medals for the other sports—the gym meets, swimming teams, and the winners of the cups for tennis, were still to be decided when the HALCYON went to press. After spring vacation all these events were played off and some more proud and happy athletes were added to the already noble company.

The Freshmen, however, have had an opportunity to hold their gym meet. In many cases the work was so well done that it seemed impossible to decide the winner, but after much consultation the honors were awarded as follows:

THE STUPID ARMY TRAINING CORPS

A dignified organization which included many who wished to do their bit without danger. Membership in this, Swarthmore's most democratic fraternity, carried with it several privileges: first, to arise any time before six every morning; second, to go unprepared to classes; third, to masquerade as a real soldier; fourth, to draw sixty dollars bonus; and fifth, to tell about how things were done "when I was in the army."

A valuable course in the science of doing as you are told, which should be made a part of our curriculum, and might well be offered to both sexes. Its benefits are also physical, as contact with the cold earth in the gray dawn is found to remove that "can't eat this rotten breakfast" feeling, and that tendency to sleep through the first hour.

FACTS ABOUT THE FACULTY

Dr. Wm. I. Hull has written a new book entitled, "Ten Thousand Leagues Over the Sea."

Some Freshmen seem to grieve over the fact that "Dr. Brooks is such a Red, Cross, Affair."

J. R. Hayes has published a poem, his masterpiece, entitled, "How Can One Dream While the Library Chimes?"

Dr. Urdahl is the originator of the famous doctrine, "The moral weakness of fussing is as degenerating as liquor."

Dr. Miller has written a humorous treatise called, "From a Professor's Scrapbook."

E. B. Miller—Young, unmarried, eligible—and anxious.

Joseph E. Swain—Swarthmore's silver-tongued and tongue-tied orator.

Parrish Hall—A gigantic aeroplane with propellers to right and left of center, a gas tank in the middle, a kitchen in the tail, girls in the wings, and the Dean of Women the chief passenger. It is run by Alma Motor.

The Library—Ssssh!

Wharton Hall—Formerly a haven of refuge from profs and women, the sanctity of which was recently invaded in two sections by the co-eds. A place to smoke but not to study. The former is done openly only in the men's sections. The latter is regarded as a breach of etiquette in Wharton, with the exception of that phase of Bible Study which involves chiefly the names of Biblical individuals. These outbreaks occur frequently, but are discouraged by Prudent Misgovernment, otherwise known as "Dr. Newport's Favorite Goat Feather." Wharton Hall encloses an amphitheater called the quadrangle, which served during war time as a scene for physical torture, but which has now been rented to Carter, Benjamin, Wiese & Co., a branch of Keith's Circuit.

Wm. J. Hall Gymnasium—This venerable building is intended for practice of the Terpsichorean art. For this purpose, there is a large open floor, fifty by eighty feet. From this floor opens an alcove overlooking the lake. There are also a gallery for spectators, a cozy corner for Miss Coles, and a very new piano.

SOCIAL AND RELIGIOUS LIFE—Mostly Social

STUDENT SOCIETIES

Somerville Society—A dead defeated defunct derelict.

The Crum Creek Navy—Splendid group of C-faring men, no one of whom has ever been seasick or lovesick.

Ye Monks of Ye Dirty Towel—A student organization of especial merit. The members live as hermits, often locked into their rooms, and abstain from all excesses, in order to exert a virtuous influence on the other men. Their chief delight is in putting to rout

The Ten Thirsty Devils—Who are hunting jobs for after July 1.

The Halcyon Staff—For information see Ward 2, Pennsylvania General Hospital for the Insane, overworked, and underdone.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Degree of Bachelor of Arts is conferred upon those who complete the undergraduate course as outlined below. Each student must have to his credit 124 cuts of absences, in addition to being a friend of Dr. Holmes. He may be required to complete additional credit as penalty for attending Collection more than 216 times a year. Each time a student is absent from class the professor mails him a red card. Four of these red cards may be exchanged at the Supts. office for a blue ticket, and four blue ones for a green ticket. One green ticket must be presented to the Dean at the end of each semester. Eight of these entitle the student to a diploma. The practice of trading cards for meal tickets is discouraged.

War Aims

Oh, how I love a first hour class,
My eyes insist on staying shut.
(Just nudge me if he calls my name)
I think she loves me, but—

Why Bolshevism, sir, is what—
Is what—(O, hell! I've no idea)—
I'm sorry, Sir, I do not know,
(Where is the place, this page or here?)

That prof. is such an awful ass,
I cannot understand a word—
I wonder if she loves me still,
It's ten days since I've heard.

(Was that my name?) Why, I'm awake,
You asked me if—I don't quite see
Just what you mean, but if—I guess
I pulled a bone—he's done with me.

A letter ought to come today.
She said she'd write, she wouldn't fail.
Thank heaven there's the bell at last,
I'll quit this now and get my mail.

Our Tale of Woe

We've had all kinds of things this year
We never had before;
The first of our afflictions was
The Army Training Corps;
And then we all got thin and pale,
Not knowing what to do,
For everywhere we went we feared
That we would catch the flu;
And then we all got quarantined,
And sat upon the fence,
And watched the people going by;
We thought we'd lose our sense.
To add next to our grief and woe
They gave us mops and brooms,

And told us for our country's sake
To sweep and dust our rooms.
We waited on the tables
Just like at an automat,
And someone always wanted bread
When we at last had sat.
Then came the agitation
That we're going to the dogs,
And that we're overorganized
With clubs and baseball togs;
Next to add to our doleful plight,
The climax of vexations,
The prep school got the smallpox, and
We all got vaccinations.

At the crack he takes the letters,

Drops them on the floor.

Dropping, dropping, dropping, dropping,
Hear the pennies fall;
Could it be the old night-watchman,

RECOGNIZE HENRY?

Hash

On Monday when the hash comes round,
It does perplex our minds,
We wonder what the stuff can be,
For they're so many kinds
Of little, round, hard molecules,
And long, thin, skinny shreds;
Some bits of red and bits of green,
And crusts of ancient breads.
There chemists slowly shake their heads,
For they cannot surmise
What kinds of "ons" and "ates" and "ics"
Our Monday hash comprise.
Biologists ponder in vain
The structure of the cells,

And only then can know them by
Their looks and shapes and smells.
For all the beans are in disguise
And eggs have changed their looks,
And cabbages take on a form
Ne'er seen in earth or books.
For Monday's hash comprises all
We've had throughout the week,
And if by any chance its left,
The next day you may seek,
For nothing ever goes to waste,
And if you look, you may
See what is left of Monday's hash
In soup we have Tuesday.

Captivating Cap

A miracle has happened,
The strangest thing by far,
For we right here in college
Have a light opera star.
Yes, he can yodel like a breeze,
Has lullabies so sweet,

They rival Mary Garden
And rag men in the street.
But when it comes to dancing,
By George, he's the whole show,
For he is a past master
With the light fantastic toe.

SHRAPNELS

Slips

(Tune—"My Mother-in-Law")

I came into Parrish Hall,
And there stood a thing against the wall
Not like a dog at all;
And furthermore it wasn't like a cat,
And twenty curious youths upon its back there sat.
I was mighty puzzled you bet;
They never fed it,
Yet they said it
Was the college pet.

I went into the post office rush,
And what did I care for the awful crush,
For my mail box was full.
I jostled all the people aside
And drew my letters forth in great and hasty pride;
Then my smile was put to a test,
A bill and ad.
Was all I had,
My room-mate had the rest.

I looked through the book room door
And there was a mop in the middle of the floor
I'd never seen before.
And when I went to investigate,
The fuzzy mop told me my voice to modulate;
You can imagine what surprise was mine,
Instead of a handle,
Oh, what scandal,
There was Caroline.

HALCYON

Eulogy

Deserted is the Library walk,
The alcoves even more;
No longer stands he in the hall
Chewing an apple core.
The maidens now pass by unseen
Before the lonely pet,
For one has gone from out our midst,
One we will not forget.
Descended from the great Lord Greb
He came to us one day,
And in the course of time, he has
Descended a long way.
Continually we miss his gaze,
His chin poised in the air,

The wild and strange look in his eyes,
His long disheveled hair.
We miss his dancing, faltering steps,
His stare where'er we go;
We miss his soul-inspiring voice
Murmuring, Oh ho! Oh ho!
No more white roses come our way,
Or courtly deviltry—
The boys in College do not know
True Danish chivalry.
Our interest in the noble Dane
Shall never, never cease;
The only Axel we have now
Is just plain axel-grease.

SHRAPNELS

A Nursery Rhyme

We girls in Swarthmore are well trained,
Of that you may be sure;
The Managers got us a nurse,
And now we must endure
To wear our hair in simple style
With ribbons neatly tied.
We never bite our finger nails,—
That she can not abide.
Our pinafores are nice and clean,
Our shoes are shined just so,
And never twice may we be seen
Talking with the same beau.
And if we're bad, and disobey,
She puts us in the corner

Until we prove to her we are
A true, repentent mourner.
At table we are lady-like,
And never would throw water;
We keep our elbows in our laps,
And do all things we ought'er.
At ten o'clock we go to bed
To get our sleep for beauty.
We always do as we are told,—
She tells us it's our duty.
And when we disobey Exec,
She makes us stand about,
And says the goblins will get us
If we don't watch out!

Where Oh Where?

Our college was the proud possessor
Of a Pacifist.
But as a history professor
His name was on the list.

He used to speak at Washington,
To help maintain the peace,
Until they thought he was a Hun,
And made his speeches cease.

So our professor he did try
To clear from stain his name.
He knew he was no German spy,
Although he had that fame.

He, therefore, sought to be disguised,
And shaved off his mustache,
And as he was not recognized,
He made an awful mash.

They knew he had no Hun intention,
But would the League enhance;
They sent him on a peace convention,
And now he is in France.

The Diary

APRIL

Mon. 1—Spring vacation begins and ends. Public ledger features photos and story of Food Conservation Course.

Tues. 2—Patriotic students try to convince themselves that they are glad to be back at work. Helen Atkins develops the measles.

Wed. 3—Dr. Hull uses slang. War is Hell!

Thurs. 4—Numerous prisoners captured by Bookies on the front campus.

Fri. 5—Women's and Men's Combined Glee Club Concert successful in spite of measles. Charley Wassman demonstrates how a freshman ought to act.

Sat. 6—Heavy fighting in the U. of P. sector, for 14 innings, but only one trench lost by S. C.—hard luck!

Mon. 8—Dean Meeteer reads 104 Psalm in Collection for a change.

Tues. 9—Phi Delta Theta installation—all right job.

Wed. 10—Tetlock persuades us to give a few more hard earned pennies to the Red Cross.

Thurs. 11—Phi Delta's reception; German spy discovered on roof of Book and Key house enjoying the sleet. Fred Donnelly Hooverizes by not dipping his hand in the flour barrel.

Fri. 12—Joint Extemp. Contest. Issy Jacobs tells the faculty how Collection ought to be run.

Sat. 13—Somerville Day. Men eat grab lunch in the gym, while women feast on salad, ice cream and toasts.

Sun. 14—Ledger invents wild tales about Edith Mendenhall, to account for her winning Lucretia Mott scholarship.

Mon. 15—Liberty Loan rally in town. Farmerettes and Little House parade, not to mention the classes. Miss Gorham in her own.

Tues. 16—Sigma Tau elections. Offensive launched in lacrosse, and U. of P. takes another trench, history repeating itself.

Wed. 17—Columbia opens heavy artillery fire, but is repulsed 3-2. Eddie Carris keeps his gas mask on during whole operation.

Thurs. 18—All the old guard turns out on the campus to fuss. Large attendance. Dave Criscom and Erd Wilson take a shot at it. Even Frank Fetter gets up his courage.

Fri. 19—Fourth East gives a noisy hour party. Mary Campbell and Tish McNeel show the fussers how it ought to be done.

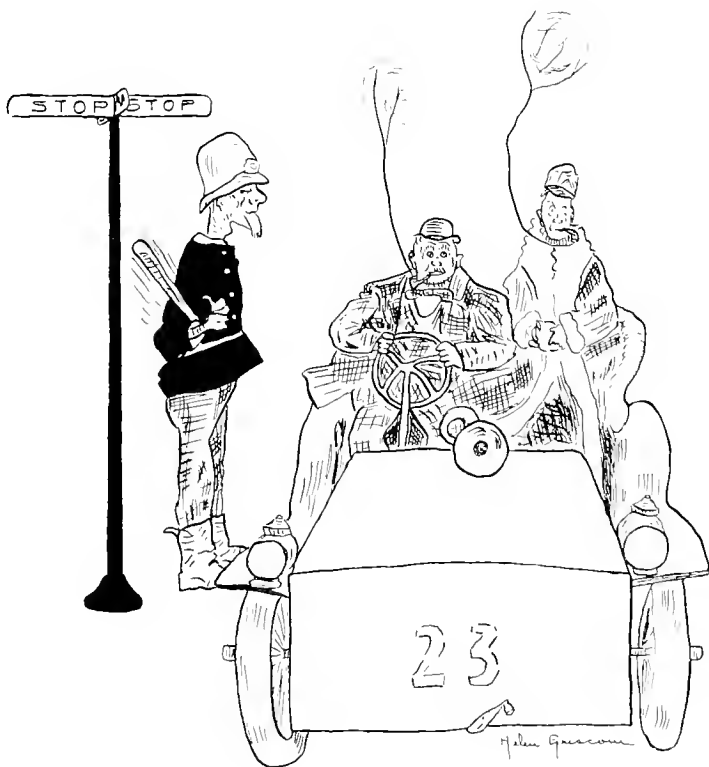

Sat. 20—D. A. S. and G. I. K. say sweet things about each other in the course of a couple of dances at Rose Valley and the Woman's Club, respectively.

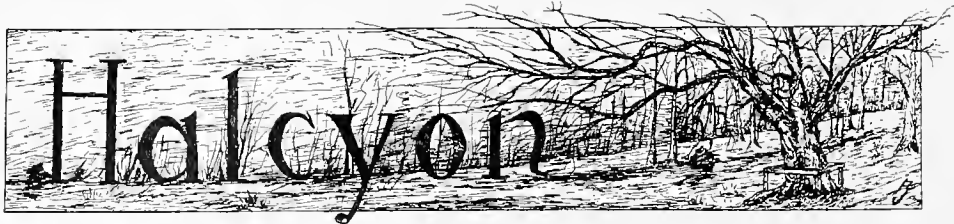

Sun. 21—Professor Pace delivers his farewell address.

Mon. 22—Miss Brewster tells how Mr. Vassar decided to take time off from his brewery to found a college. Another nigger stiff arrives for Doc Trotter's lab.

Tues. 23—Soph-Senior picnic. Herrick and McClintock try to outrun each other. Girls forget that marshmallows are to be eaten and use them for powder puffs.

WATCH THE SIGNS

Wed. 24—Ogden repulses heavy Navy attack, 5-0. The stiff goes on a rampage and felines decompose on the same day, not to mention the turtles. Doc Trotter tries to train his olfactory nerves.

Thurs. 25—Penn opens heavy artillery fire, but is repulsed with losses, 2-1. Widener's life is threatened by a vicious Penn warrior, but instead of winning an iron cross he only wins lacrosse. (Joke).

Fri. 26—Measles!!! Kappas raid the Pest House.

Sat. 27—Eli artillery opens an intense baseball bombardment, but is repulsed, 6-0. A patrol of track athletes reconnoiter in Penn Relays and come out second.

Sun. 28—Student Meeting—Students enjoy listening to the faculty. More Kappas in the Pest House.

Mon. 29—Drew Pearson elected editor of "the other" Swartmore Publication. Dr. Blessing brings 1,000,000 tons of coal to Collection.

Tues. 30—Continued coal in Collection. Freshies try to give Juniors a picnic in the rain.

MAY

Wed. 1—Rain and track meet stop in time to see fair May maidens gambol on the green.

Thurs. 2—Mary Roberts and Charlotte Bunting tennis champions.

Sat. 4—Successful raiding operations all along the line—in track, lacrosse, baseball, and tennis.

Sun. 5—Sunday—Hostile attacks cease for the day.

Mon. 6—Men's Student Government decides that it would be useless to let another Soph class try to surpass "Captain Jinks." G. I. K. and D. A. S. amuse the rest of Parrish and Wharton from 3 to 5 A. M. Miss Meeteer especially is lulled to peaceful slumber.

Tues. 7—French picnic. Miss Bronk appears in the latest sport attire and persuades Issy Jacobs to eat some ice cream salt. G. I. K. and D. A. S. agree to let war rage in Europe.

Wed. 8—Alpha Theta Pi announces that it has existed almost a year. Leave it to 1920 to keep a secret!

Thurs. 9—Exams begin. The night watchman gets blisters on his knuckles.

Fri. 10—Fish stimulates strenuous studies.

Sat. 11—Exams encourage earnest endeavors.

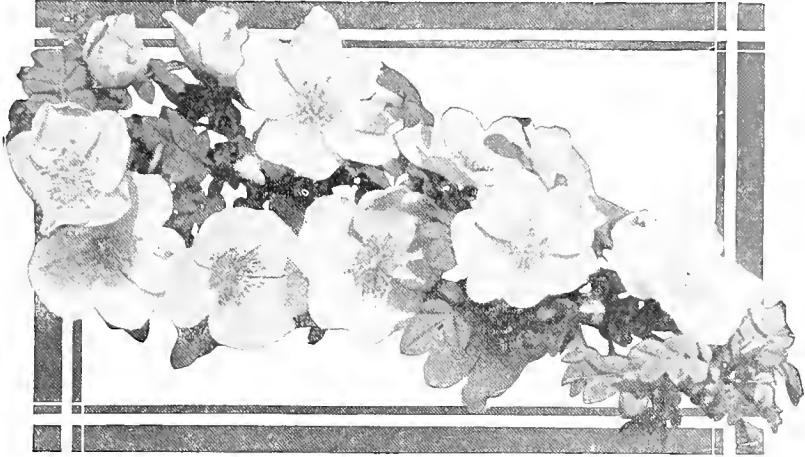

Sun. 12—Three students go to meeting (at least we imagine so, we were not there).

Tues. 14—Only the sound of scratching pens disturbs the unbroken silence of the college.

Wed. 15—The 1919 HALCYON arrives in trunks. We sling ours on the table and go on studying.

Thurs. 16—The Board of Managers lets up a little and obstructs the view from the Pet with a service flag.

Fri. 17—Everybody goes home.

A New Rose Species—the Most Floriferous
Perfectly Hardy, Bright Yellow Rose

“HUGONIS”

BLOOMS TEN DAYS EARLIER THAN ANY OTHER ROSE

Mrs. Dr. W. Van Fleet, Washington, D. C., spring 1917, said to our President, Robert Pyle: “We had Hugonis in bloom during the last snowstorm, and I never saw a more beautiful sight.”

We are constantly on the lookout for new good Roses, and we believe we were the first Rose growers in this country to recognize the value of Hugonis. Our original stock was secured by Mr. Pyle in 1911, when on a visit to England, and came direct from stock raised from seed from North Central China. Mr. E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, describes Hugonis as follows: “It is an upright-growing shrub 6 to 8 feet tall, and more in diameter, with slender and spreading branches. The single, fragrant flowers, each about 2½ inches across, are produced all along the branches, and so freely are they borne that the branches become yard-long sprays of soft yellow.”

Hugonis is indeed the herald of Roses, and you will find it offered in three sizes, with almost four hundred other choice varieties in our

which we will be glad to send free on request. Write for it to-day.

SPECIAL OFFER—If you mention “The 1920 Halycon” when ordering $5 worth of “Hugonis” Roses, we will present you with a copy of our 121-page book, “HOW TO GROW ROSES,” by Robert Pyle, if you request it when ordering.

SEPTEMBER

Sat. 18—Class Day. The Seniors give an exhibition of how undignified they used to be. Penn delivers a successful shrapnel attack in baseball, 7-3. Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly, in "Pomander Walk," show how it all happened.

Sun. 19—Bill Reilly orates for the last time.

Mon. 20—Commencement—The Seniors are glad they had no Easter holiday.

Mon. 16—Dining-room waitresses conspicuous by their absence. A Freshman wants to know if the Book and Key house is the family vault of the college president.

Tues. 17—Miss Gorham is mobbed and offers to teach all the English classes. Girls enjoy stag dining-room.

Wed. 18—Freshman girls have breakfast at 6 A. M. Juniors try to look younger than the Freshmen at their Baby party.

Thurs. 19—1921 Soph show takes the form of a musical comedy, "Whistle, Lizzie, Whistle." Gloom—S. A. T. C. men cannot linger in the hall to fuss.

Fri. 20—Joy—Fussers arrange to finish dinner fifteen minutes earlier.

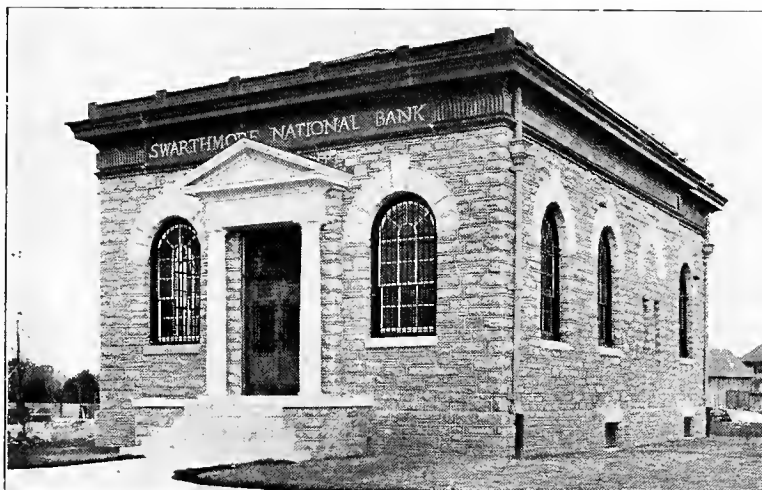

Sat. 21—Unusual number of Saturday classes discovered. Influenza victims dance at Y. W. reception.

Sun. 22—S. A. T. C. departs from college luxury and eats from planks. Crum Creek Navy causes sensation by appearing in girls' dining room. Rumors that the men are to eat in the gym., so that soup can be made in the swimming pool.

Mon. 23—Blue hair-ribbons much in evidence. Freshmen without first hour classes suddenly become popular.

Sun. 6—The singing of "Keep the Home Fires Burning" is prohibited in the interest of the conservation of fuel.

Mon. 7—Collection singing omitted. Evidently they are not trying to conserve fuel in the hereafter.

Tues. 8—J. R. H. uses strong language against the Germans. War "Phoenix" comes out; time saved in reading it will be spent in studying.

Thurs. 10—Hamlet, the melancholy Dane, returns from the flu to the halls of Swarthmore. Reports of a burglar in Wharton.

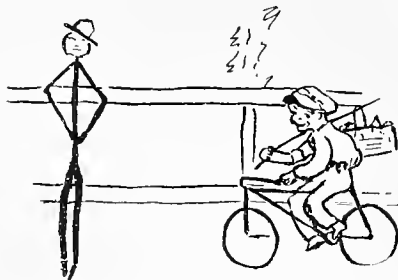

Fri. 11—Burglar reports turn out to be merely the reports of a pistol.

Sat. 12—1922 gives noisy hour party, which forces Keith's out of business.

Sun. 13—No church.

Mon. 14—New table system for girls starts. Collection singing starts again. We will all grow wings yet.

Tues. 15—President Wilson and the Phoenix refuse peace terms.

Wed. 16—Betty Atherholt says that President Wilson should have told the Germans to go to H—(no, not Heaven). Brooksy agrees with her. Mass meeting.

Thurs. 17—Mass meeting discontinued. Of all sad words of tongue or pen, The saddest are these—no game with Penn.

Fri. 18—A barrel of Dr. Trotter's fish is sent to the kitchen by mistake. We have an uncomfortable feeling that perhaps this has happened before. Sophs raise Cain at the Library.

Sat. 19—Library closed by imperial decree of J. R. H. Full moon shines through the quarantine clouds. Junior-Soph reception teaches the Fresh how to fuss.

Sun. 20—Unusual occurrence—Bill Ridpath and Fred Boughton visit Swarthmore.

Mon. 21—Brooks gives an exam in War Aims. Oh, wie schoene!

Tues. 22—The latest from Queen Fashion's Paris court—Dust caps and aprons on second west. Girls decide they would rather be happy than married.

How Do You Wear Your Hat?

Did you ever have somebody put your hat on for you and try to wear it that way ?

It can't be done. You experience acute discomfort until you give it a little familiar tug, and it settles down comfortably. Now it is your hat.

And how about the clothes you wear ? Do you ever feel that you are wearing somebody else's clothes ?

Are they made in accordance with your fancy, your whims, your habits ? In brief, do they fit your personality ?

You long ago discarded ready-made clothes, if indeed you ever wore them : but why not adopt individual tailoring ? Then when you get clothes, they will be emphatically your clothes.

We build clothes around a man's personality. Watch us do it.

We have all the seasonable things in variety, the choicest weaves—all-wool, and the best only. And the garments are made by well-paid, contented workers.

Trees

Plant Historic Ones

PLANT a living memorial of the restoration of Peace; of the glorious sacrifice of noble lives; of the part played by your dear ones.
Our English Elms, scions cut from aged trees, which we especially obtained from historic places in England and Scotland; will always carry the sentimental association of interest in our Allies.

This special lot of trees is not to be found at any other source in the world. Ours is the ONLY SUP-PLY, and is limited.

Send for information and price.
